TOP THINGS TO DO

- Hegra (Mada'in Salih) — Saudi Arabia's First UNESCO Site — The centrepiece of any Al Wajh call.
- Al Wajh Town Walk & Souk — Explore the corniche past date palms and mosques, browse the local souk for frankincense, camel milk soap, and spices, and see the Al Wajh Fort with...
- Red Sea Snorkelling & Diving — The reef systems off Al Wajh are among the Red Sea's least-dived — vivid coral gardens, reef fish, and the occasional wreck in warm, clear water.
- Desert Safari & Sandboarding — The golden dunes of the Tabuk region start just inland.
- Island-Hopping in the Al Wajh Lagoon — The shallow lagoon north of town holds a chain of small coral islands with nesting seabirds and isolated beaches.

BEST WALKS

- Al Wajh Corniche & Old Souk 1.5 km · Flat · 45-60 min — From the dock, taxi or walk into town and stroll the seafront corniche south toward the old market.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Visa matters: Saudi Arabia requires a tourist or e-visa. Most cruise lines arrange a group shore-pass — confirm before sailing; individual visas can be issued online but must be sorted in advance.
- Heat is serious: Al Wajh sits in one of the world's hottest regions. Call days outside October–March can see 35–45 °C. Bring water, sunscreen, and a hat for any outdoor time.
- Dress modestly: Saudi Arabia expects conservative dress in public — shoulders and knees covered for both men and women. This is especially important on the Hegra excursion and in the town souk.
- Book Hegra early: Entry to the Hegra archaeological site requires advance reservation (online or through your cruise line). Ship excursions handle this — independent travellers must pre-book via the AIUla Experience platform.
- Cash & cards: Saudi riyals are the local currency; international cards work in hotels and larger outlets near AIUla but carry some SAR cash for the local souk.
- Photography rules: Photography of people without consent and of certain government or military facilities is prohibited. At Hegra, follow the site rules — the tombs are sacred heritage sites.
