KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Berlin is a full-day commitment. With 2.5 hrs each way, you need a 10-12 hr port call to make it work. Confirm your ship's all-aboard time before booking independently.
- Train beats coach for flexibility. Direct RE trains from Warnemünde/Rostock to Berlin Hauptbahnhof run regularly. Buy DB Sparpreis tickets in advance for ~€30 each way.
- Pre-book Berlin museums. Pergamon Museum and the Reichstag dome require timed-entry reservations — walk-ups are often sold out.
- Warnemünde is perfectly pleasant. If Berlin feels like too much, the beach is five minutes from the gangway, the fish-and-chips at the canal is excellent, and Rostock is a lovely Hanseatic city in its own right.
- Cash still matters in Germany. Many smaller restaurants and markets in Warnemünde and Rostock prefer cash. ATMs are near the terminal.
- Pack a layer. The Baltic coast is reliably breezy and cooler than you expect, even in summer. A light jacket is recommended even on sunny port days.
