

Diu Island, Gujarat, India

A former Portuguese enclave off the Gujarat coast, Diu is India's 'Island of Calm' — whitewashed colonial streets, an imposing 16th-century sea fort, and quiet beaches — including Blue Flag–certified Ghoghla — without the crowds.

- Tender port
- Typical call: 6–8 hrs
- Indian Rupee (INR) — carry cash
- Gujarati / Hindi / some English
- Alcohol legal (unlike mainland Gujarat)

Getting around: Taxi ₹200–₹600 (~$2–$7 USD) · Rideshare not available

TOP THINGS TO DO

- Diu Fort & Old Town Walk — The Portuguese-built Diu Fort (1535) dominates the eastern tip of the island, surrounded by water on three sides.
- Naida Caves — Just outside the city wall, this labyrinthine network of rock cavities was quarried by the Portuguese for building stone.
- St. Paul's Church & Diu Museum — St.
- Nagoa Beach & Hoka Trees — Diu's most famous horseshoe-shaped beach is lined with the rare Hoka tree (brought from Africa by Portuguese sailors) and is safe for swimming.
- Gangeshwar Mahadev Temple — Five ancient Shiva Lingas are carved into coastal rocks at the shoreline.

BEST WALKS

- Fort to Old Town Heritage Walk 1.5 km · 30 min · Easy — From the Bunder Jetty, walk east along the waterfront to Diu Fort, then loop back west through the old town past St.
- Naida Caves Stroll Short drive + 20 min on foot · Easy — Tuk-tuk to the Naida Caves parking area (5 min from jetty), then walk the loop through the cave network at your own pace.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Carry INR cash. ATMs exist in town but can run out. Most tuk-tuks, temple gates, and small shops are cash-only. ₹500–₹1,000 is plenty for most shore days.
- Negotiate tuk-tuk fares upfront. A full-day tuk-tuk covering fort, caves, beach, and temple runs ₹800–₹1,200 (~$10–15 USD). Agree before you get in.
- Dress conservatively for temples and churches. Cover shoulders and knees when visiting Gangeshwar Temple, St. Paul's Church, and the Diu Museum.
- Swim only at Nagoa or Ghoghla Beach. Both have safety flags and lifeguards. Jallandhar and other rocky beaches have strong currents — scenic, not safe for swimming.
- Try the seafood. Diu is famous for fresh prawns, pomfret, and lobster. O'Coqueiro restaurant does excellent Portuguese-style fish dishes in a garden setting.
- Indian e-Visa is mandatory. Diu is Indian territory — confirm your visa well before departure and check that your cruise line won't bar you from tendering ashore without one.
