TOP THINGS TO DO

- Landschaftspark Duisburg-Nord — A decommissioned coal and steel plant turned public park is the city's crown jewel.
- Museum Küppersmühle (MKM) — Housed in a converted 19th-century grain mill right on the Inner Harbor, MKM holds one of Germany's finest collections of post-war modern art...
- Inner Harbor Boat Tour (Hafenrundfahrt) — A 2-hour narrated cruise into the world's largest inland port, passing giant container terminals, coal docks, and historic shipyards.
- Lehmbruck Museum — A world-class sculpture museum in the leafy Kant Park dedicated to modern sculpture, featuring works by Lehmbruck, Giacometti, and Henry Moore.
- Tiger & Turtle — Magic Mountain — A walkable roller-coaster sculpture atop the Heinrich-Hildebrand-Höhe in Angerpark, southern Duisburg — an award-winning art installation you can...

BEST WALKS

- Inner Harbor & Schwanentor Stroll 45 min · Flat · Free — An easy loop from the pier along the revitalised Innenhafen promenade, past the MKM grain mill, the Norman Foster buildings, and down to the Rheinorange sculpture at the...
- City Center & Königstraße 30 min · Flat · Free — Walk from the pier northwest through the pedestrian zone to the main shopping street and the Lehmbruck Museum in Kant Park — a pleasant urban stroll through Duisburg's...

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Use the tram for Landschaftspark. It's 7 km from the pier — too far to walk. Tram 903 from Rathaus takes ~20 min and costs ~€3 each way. Buy tickets at the platform machine.
- Eat Currywurst at a local stand. The Ruhr Valley's iconic street food — sliced pork sausage with spiced curry-ketchup. Pair it with Pommes Schranke (fries with mayo AND ketchup). Look for it near the Inner Harbor.
- Try König Pilsener. Duisburg's local brew since 1858 (König-Brauerei, in the Beeck district). Order it at any brewpub in town — the Webster Brauhaus on Dellplatz is a short walk from the Innenhafen.
- Sunday: no shopping. German law closes retail stores on Sundays, but museums, Landschaftspark, the zoo, and restaurants are all open.
- Carry some cash. Cards are widely accepted in restaurants and museums, but street food vendors, tram ticket machines, and small kiosks prefer cash.
- Late call? Stay for the light show. On weekends and holidays, Landschaftspark Duisburg-Nord is illuminated after dark with a spectacular colour light installation — one of the best free spectacles in the Ruhr.
