KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Confirm your pier before planning. Large ships dock 15 km out at Muelle Sur — shuttle is free but check departure times back to ship carefully.
- Eat the white prawns. Gambas blancas de Huelva are a world-class delicacy, usually just boiled with sea salt. Don't leave without trying them at a market bar or seafront restaurant.
- Siesta is real here. Huelva is not tourist-heavy — shops and small restaurants close 2–5 PM. Front-load sightseeing and save the afternoon for a long lunch.
- Doñana requires advance booking. You cannot self-visit — access is by licensed 4x4 tour only. Book online or via your ship well before the port day.
- English is limited. Huelva is authentic Andalusia — have Google Translate ready and know basic ordering phrases. Locals are warm and patient.
- Cash handy for tapas bars. Cards accepted nearly everywhere, but small tapas bars and market stalls may prefer cash. ATMs are easy to find near Plaza de las Monjas.
