

Isle of Mull, Scotland, United Kingdom

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Book transport in advance. Taxis on Mull are extremely limited and fill up with cruise passengers months ahead. If you want to reach Calgary Bay, Duart Castle, or Iona independently, pre-book well before your voyage.
- Reserve the distillery tasting. Tobermory Distillery fills quickly on cruise days. Book directly on their website before your cruise; walk-ins are often turned away.
- Pack layers and waterproofs. Hebridean weather changes fast. Dress in layers with a windproof, waterproof jacket even on sunny mornings — the afternoon can be a different story.
- Bring midge repellent (Jun–Sep). Highland midges are tiny biting flies that swarm on calm, humid days. Buy Smidge or Avon Skin So Soft before or at shops in Tobermory.
- Eat the seafood. Café Fish on the pier serves shellfish caught that morning. Reserve ahead; it fills up on cruise days. For a quick bite, try Tobermory Fish Company smoked trout on the harbor.
- Iona is a full-day commitment. It's 1.5 hrs each way from Tobermory plus a ferry crossing. Only attempt it on a port call of 8+ hours, and only via a ship excursion or pre-booked private tour.
