KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Homeport logistics: New Orleans is usually a departure/arrival port, not a quick stop. Confirm your all-aboard — most ships give you a full day, but verify with your daily program.
- Heat and humidity: Summer visits (June–September) are brutally hot and muggy. Wear light clothing, carry water, and plan indoor stops (WWII Museum, Audubon Aquarium) during the midday heat.
- Free music everywhere: You don't need to book a jazz club — street musicians on Royal Street and in Jackson Square are genuinely excellent. Drop a few dollars in the case.
- Café du Monde is a must: At the edge of Jackson Square, open early until late (roughly 7am–11pm, later on weekends). Order the beignets (3 for ~$4) and chicory café au lait. Wear dark clothes — the powdered sugar is an ambush.
- Getting around: The Riverfront Streetcar ($1.25) connects the terminals to Canal Street in 5 minutes.
- Stay aware: The French Quarter is tourist-dense and generally safe by day.
