KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

- Book the Alcázar in advance. Timed-entry tickets sell out days ahead, especially in spring and autumn. Buy online before your cruise or queue early.
- Summer heat is serious. June–September temperatures regularly top 38°C (100°F). Start early, carry water, wear a hat, and plan a midday break in the shade.
- Cash and card both work. Most Seville restaurants and shops accept cards. Some traditional tapas bars prefer cash — keep small bills for drinks and snacks.
- Spanish lunch runs late. Kitchens open at 14:00, tapas bars peak at 14:30–16:00. Don't show up hungry at noon expecting a full meal — grab a morning pastry from a coffeehouse instead.
- Check whether your ship actually docks in Seville. Mega-ships can't navigate the river and instead call at Cádiz — Seville is a long day excursion from there, not a walk-off port.
- Flamenco tablao vs tourist show. Casa de la Memoria and Casa Anselma (Triana) are widely regarded as the most authentic venues. Book ahead — seats fill fast on call days.
